

Our commitment to serving our customers and our community has led to over thirty years of success

Our company was formed in 1972 by Howard Perry, an established builder, and Don Walston, a real estate entrepreneur. Today, with over 600 real estate professionals, 12 sales offices, the area's premier new homes division, a mortgage company, title company, an award winning relocation division, a growing Concierge home services division, the area's number one real estate school, and the #1 real estate Web site in the state, Coldwell Banker Howard Perry and Walston has become the largest full-service residential real estate company in the Triangle and one of the leading realty firms in the nation. We are proud to be locally owned and operated and we are committed to serving the real estate and home ownership needs of our community by putting our customers first.

Through the years, Coldwell Banker Howard Perry and Walston has also had a tradition of supporting those in need. In 1998, the HPW Foundation was established in order to create opportunities for employees and sales associates to support charitable and non-profit organizations in their local communities. In turn, the company provides matching funds, allowing individual contributions to make an even greater impact. The HPW Foundation supports various not-for-profit organizations to benefit countless individuals throughout the Triangle. Recipients have included Habitat for Humanity, Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, The Frankie Lemmon Foundation and area rescue missions.
